New York Best Selling Author Haywood

Becoming a writer after a midlife reassessment at forty, Atlanta native Haywood Smith published six critically acclaimed historical romance novels about “strong women, hunky men, great love scenes, and accurate history” set in England and Scotland. They have received numerous national awards and nominations, including a Best First Book Rita nomination from Romance Writers of America, a prestigious Maggie Award, and a Romantic Times Lifetime Achievement Award.

Haywood now writes funny, uplifting women’s fiction about serious issues for “women who’ve lived long enough to learn a thing or two.”

“But I have a strong following among younger women,” Haywood says, “because I write about how we women can help each other, instead of tearing each other down.”

Haywood is currently revising and re-releasing her historical novels for young adult and general readership in e-reader formats. QUEEN BEE GOES HOME AGAIN, the much requested sequel to her popular QUEEN BEE OF MIMOSA BRANCH, will be released in September, 2014.

Author Amy Hanley

The words no mother is ever prepared to hear echoed off the wall, “It’s your life or the life of the baby.” Only 38 years old and six weeks pregnant, those were the words that would forever change my life.

When the home-schooling mother of four, Amy Hanley, was diagnosed with stage three colorectal cancer during her fourth pregnancy, she was faced with a choice of putting her trust in God or listening to modern doctors. In her inspirational story “Surrender”, Amy gives a personal, honest, heartfelt account of the devastation and despair of her diagnosis.

Amy describes how cancer is not truly a personal sickness, it is a family sickness. Her husband and children share touching excerpts giving a fresh perspective as to cancer’s effect on the family as a unit. Through their journey, this family found the hope in hopelessness. “Surrender” is a testimony to God’s faithfulness and an inspiration to all who are looking for hope and peace in the midst of a storm.

Amy Hanley lives in Carnesville, GA with her husband Bobby and their four children, Jonathan, Luke, Emma, and Joshua. She enjoys seizing opportunities to share her story with others through writing and public speaking.
